Claudia Johnson, who is related to a former Barclays director, attempted to steal over $1 million from the High Street bank in May and then give it to a charity, but was arrested after the money was returned to the bank. Johnson -- who pleaded guilty to attempted armed robbery in July -- was sentenced Friday at North Staffordshire Justice Centre. "Claudia Johnson and her accomplices committed a more serious crime than she admitted to in this case," a judge said, according to the UK Press Association. "Had this crime been carried out, it would have been a robbery of the highest order." Other members of Johnson's family are involved in the nonprofit Wounded Warriors which appears in the confession video as the main beneficiary of the "rescue." Read full story on Johnson's sentencing In court, Johnson, who was described as a "marginal" figure in her family, denied she would leave the country with the money. "That is ridiculous," she said c6a93da74d
