[FSX P3D] REX4 Texture Direct With Soft Clouds Enhanced Edition Hack Pc __TOP__

rex4 texture direct contain several great features, you may want to try them out. if you are going to fly in our flying scenery, i highly recommend it. it has all the features needed for your next project, plus more. first off, you'll want to grab this plugin and extract the fsx folder into your fsx/p3d directory. secondly, you'll need to download a dds file of sorts. i like the mxgdd file but there are many different versions, so go with whatever you like. i used an mxgdd texture pack that i find on flynsarmy.com so, once you have your texture pack, extract it into the fsx/p3d directory. next, you'll need to make sure your aircraft has a texture in the aircraft.cfg file. this is the directory where most fsx/p3d textures are located and can be found here: "c:\program files\microsoft\microsoft flight simulator\aircraft\config". if you're not sure what aircraft to use, here's a good list . next, you need to add the texture to the aircraft. for this hack, i used a tbnf light combat jet, so i added the textures listed below to the aircraft.cfg file. these textures are available in fspassengers's fsx/p3d repositories .

- version 5.03 for p3dv4
- p3d v4: entity airports with several new airports
- p3d v4: additional southeast asia airports
- p3dv4: aircrafts
- p3dv4: airline options
- p3dv4: passenger options
- p3dv4: us airport
- v3/aerosoft highlights

some people may have come across issues with rex4 while trying to install the p3d v1 prepar3d default textures. for the most part, the issue is that fsx will load up the default texture as they were when i stopped working on them and it has been a while since i worked on them. to fix this, you will need to do the following: first off, when you install rex4, you need to import all of the mods you want to use. the easiest way is to try and use the new textures inside of prepar3d itself, and import these over to rex4
