A case-control study was carried out to identify risk factors for myocardial infarction. Cases were patients treated in a coronary care unit. Controls were patients admitted to a cardiology ward with uncomplicated chest pain and no ECG evidence of myocardial infarction. The risk factors analysed were sex, age, hypertension, diabetes, smoking, dyslipidemia and family history of myocardial infarction. The results showed that age (P less than 0.001), male sex (P less than 0.001), and hypertension (P less than 0.001) are associated with myocardial infarction, and that smoking is inversely related to infarction (P less than 0.001). Age and smoking were highly significant determinants of in-hospital death (P less than 0.001) and death during follow-up (P less than 0.001). // Copyright 2018 The Go Authors.
